Wellness in the workplace is not just about implementing a program and hoping for the best. It's about creating a culture of wellness and continually educating your Team. Also, wellness isn't one size fits all; it's always changing and adjusting. It's important to stay relevant and engaging.

PAY IT FORWARD

What's some advice you'd give to someone who works in health and wellness?

Where better to invest than in your Team?! These types of changes and cultural shifts don't happen overnight. Seeing results can take time and wellness certainly requires support and tending to because it's important to keep it current, fun and easy to do. Also, remember to communicate wellness to your Team. Let them know how wellness is working for your company.
